

AMUSEMENTS

"The Bandbox Revue."

Next week two stellar features will head the Edith's Theater bill—Gus Edwards' latest hit, "The Bandbox Revue," and Claude Gillingwater and company. Only two shows at the usual regular hours, will be given Wednesday, Decoration day, extra matinees on such occasions having been suspended for the summer.

George Price and "Cuddles" Edwards, supported by "Kid McCormack" and the customary quota, will present "The Bandbox Revue," of twelve numbers full of comic pranks, catchy melodies and musical merriment. Jule Herne is the leading member of Mr. Gillingwater's company. Their play is "The Frame-Up," described as a "punch" sketch, by Reginald Barlow. "Ragtime" Reilly, a sailor from the S. S. Michigan, will appear in an original pianologue, featuring the sailor's entertainment when off duty.

Other acts are the Sharrocks, in "fair-ground fortune-telling fun"; Walter Brower, Lester Beaumont and Arthur Holt, in "The American Girl"; and a quartet, Carlisle and Romer and Adeline Francis, with the pipe organ recitals and the Hearst-Rogers pictorial play.

Sunday at 3 and 8:15 p.m. the bill will present Julia Arthur, in "Liberty Bells," and the Hearst-Rogers pictorial play, "The Shop," and other attractions of the current week.

"Saturday to Monday."

"Saturday to Monday," the new comedy which Winthrop Ames will present at the Helmsco Theater next week, is the work of William J. Hurlbut, and depicts American life from an entirely new angle. Susanne Ercoll, the heroine, is a typical American girl, and in drawing the character Mr. Hurlbut is said to have shown deep divination of a young girl's aspirations with reality. The play is declared to be quaint and original throughout, fantastic in its conception and unexpected in its outcome.

Most of the characters belong to the smart set of the fashionable world, but the character of George, an Irish janitor, has been entrusted to Charles F. McCarthy, who was long identified with Edward Arrigan in his famous series of local New York plays.

"The Chocolate Soldier."

"The Chocolate Soldier," the Viennese comic opera by Oscar Straus, will be the offering of the Aborn company next week at the New National Theater. It is one of the best liked of the list of importations of its type, which began with "The Merry Widow." The libretto is a parody upon George Bernard Shaw's clever play, "Arms and the Man," and the bright lines and smart lyrics of the American librettist, Stanislaus Stancu, contributed much to the success of the piece in this country. The score presents a fine example of pure comic opera with many charming gems of composition in both the comic and sentimental vein.

The principal characters are Helena Morrill, as Nadine; Charles H. Bowers, as Bumerli; Carrie Reynolds, as Masha; Mildred Rogers, as Agatha; Carl Haydn, as Alexis; George Shields as Massakoff; and James McElhern, as Cassimir.

"The House of Glass."

"The House of Glass," by Max Marcin, a play strong in dramatic incident and absorbing interest, with many intense moments, Mr. Marcin has taken as his basic principle innocence falsely accused. "The House of Glass" had a long run in New York and was presented during the past winter in this city at the New National Theater.

"Six Merry Mermaids."

The Cosmos Theater next week will present an eight-act bill of variety, the vaudeville headed by "Six Merry Mermaids," an aquatic spectacle with acrobatics, the usual diving act and many other new features of water acrobatics against a scenic background. It is one of the best of its type and presents a sextet of pretty girls. Other acts are Delmore, Angel and Company in "A Regular Soldier"; Cook and Company in "The Man Ahead," another kind of soldier; Ben McFadden, an Irish singer with a number of humorous stories; Alice Morley and the McCarty sisters, billed as "A Trio of Mlle. Venus"; Pat and Peggy Houghton in the latest songs and dances of Broadway; Holmes and Holliston, in "Brady and Morgan, acrobats of a new type, with an unusually attractive film exhibit, including a big feature, the Hearst-Rogers pictorial and selected film comedies.

Sunday's performances, starting at 3 p.m., will offer "The Four Tushands" and the other acts of the current week's bill.

Garrison-Granger Recital.

Mabel Garrison, the American soprano, and Percy Granger, the noted pianist, will be heard in joint recital Friday afternoon, at 4:30 o'clock, at the Polk's Theater for the benefit of the fund for the George Washington memorial building. George Siemmon will be the accompanist for Miss Garrison. The program includes the "Queen of the Night," aria from Mozart's "Magic Flute"; "Ah! Forsi Lull," from "La Traviata"; a Norwegian echo song; a Swedish song, "When I Was Seven," which was sung by Jenny Lind, and a number of other delightful selections by Miss Garrison, and a group of Chopin pieces, Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 3," and a group of folk songs and dance melodies by Mr. Granger.

Glen Echo Park.

With new dance pavilion and fresh attractions, Glen Echo Park is well started on its summer season and day and night is catering to those seeking clean, wholesome, out-of-door amusement. The "Joy-Jigger" heads the list of new attractions. The dance pavilion is one of the most sumptuous places of its sort around Washington, and an excellent orchestra of ten pieces adds to the enjoyment of the dancers.

Sunday concerts by Sol Minster's band will be given afternoon and evening. Every night movies in the open air are included in the free admission.

Photoplay Features.

Loew's Columbia.

"A Romance of the Redwoods," the photoplay that will hold first place on Loew's Columbia screen all next week pictures Mary Pickford as a prim little school teacher from New England, who goes west and encounters a real bandit. Through a combination of circumstances she is forced to pose as the "bad man's" niece and share his cabin. Then comes a series of legitimate comedy situations that make extraordinary demands on Miss Pickford. The young Puritan teacher, in clean hands and clean, white tablecloths at meals. She falls in love with her cave man and acts outrageously with an elderly suitor to arouse his jealousy. She even saves him from a vigilante committee by a clever subterfuge. Miss Pickford builds her new type of character against a background of stage settings provided by nature in the wonderfully beautiful "big tree" country of California. Elliott Dexter, Tully Marshall and others are shown in the cast.

Howard.

Porter Emerson Brown's famous play, "A Fool There Was," is being presented to large and appreciative audiences at the Howard Theater this week with the Quality Amusement Company of colored players, with Abbie Mitchell as "the vampire" and Walker Thompson as "the fool."

Strand.

For four days, beginning Sunday and continuing to Wednesday, inclusive, Douglas Fairbanks will be the picture star at Moore's Strand. He will appear in "The Sign of the Cross," a melodramatic comedy that offers the agile Mr. Fairbanks opportunities for new and original stunts. The story deals with a young man who falls in love with a girl's daughter while in jail. A jealous detective, in love with the girl himself, uses his influence and the young man is set at liberty. The only way he can see the girl is by being locked up in the prison, so right away he attempts to commit sundry offenses with the hope of being arrested, but every time he is either acquitted or the charges are withdrawn. The picture has been described as a hurricane of fast action and fun, all of a wholesome sort. Other pictures will be shown daily and accompaniments played by the orchestra.

Garden.

Rex Beach's story of Alaskan life, "The Barrier," pictured by "an all-star cast" will be the main photoplay attraction at Moore's Garden Theater next week, for seven days, beginning Sunday afternoon. The story is the romance of a soldier of Uncle Sam and Neela, an Alaskan girl, who is reared in the belief that an Indian squaw with whom she lives is her mother. The girl worships the stalwart soldier, but the Indian blood that is supposed to run in her veins is "the barrier" between them. "Polon Doret, a Frenchman, also loves the girl, and it is through his nobility and self-sacrifice that the girl's parentage is established. He then jumps into his canoe and goes swinging down the river, merrily chanting a folk-song, while his heart is breaking. "The Barrier" comes from a long run at the Broadway Theater, New York. Special music will be played by an augmented orchestra.
